

CHRONIC PAIN DIVORCE RATE

SAVING MARRIAGE FROM DIVORCE.

The healthy marriage divorce rate is already high, 50% means that every other couple divorces.

People have problems, that happen, but adding to it chronic pain, the divorce rate rises as high as 75%!

I know about the chronic pain divorce rate divorce. My wife suffers from endometriosis and fibromyalgia.

She battles with chronic pain daily and asked me to divorce her on a few separate occasions since she was diagnosed with both chronic illnesses.

From personal experience based on my marriage I've learned two things:

Men struggle to cope with new adjustments and lack of sex life, which makes them leave their wives.

Women feel guilty, useless, anxious, depressed, they feel like a burden and ask their husbands to leave them.

My wife, M, suffers from stage IV deep infiltrating endometriosis, which is one of the worst kinds of endometriosis possible, but she also suffers from fibromyalgia.

Both illnesses bring a lot of pain and greatly impact her physical, emotional, and mental health.

Why the chronic pain divorce rate is higher than living without it?

Because chronic means constant, and chronic pain affects women's sex drive. Sex is very important to men. Women don't want to have sex in fear of extreme pain, but overall, it is traumatic for both partners.

Women feel guilty every time they refuse sex. But sometimes their pain is too much to bear, so the last thing on their mind is sex.
